FROM THE DIRECTOR'S DESK

As I reflect on this past year, my heart is filled with gratitude.

ImpactHope has been part of my life for many years, and time has only deepened my appreciation for this organization and the people who make this work possible, including so many volunteers. Over the years, I've had the privilege of witnessing the faithfulness of our staff, partners, and supporters, and this past year has been no exception. Your generosity, commitment, and trust continue to be the foundation upon which ImpactHope stands.

This year, we witnessed God at work in powerful ways. Across the communities we serve, local leaders continued to respond to real needs with courage, compassion, and creativity. Through healthcare, education, clean water, food security, and community development, lives were touched and futures strengthened. Each number represented in this report reflects a person, a family, and a story of hope.

One of the most meaningful shifts we continue to embrace is a growing focus on sustainability. While meeting immediate needs remains important, we are increasingly committed to long-term, community-led solutions that equip people to thrive well into the future. We believe lasting transformation happens when local leaders are empowered, and communities are supported to build resilience, dignity, and self-sufficiency.

It has been especially encouraging to see teams serve alongside our overseas partners and witness this approach first-hand. These experiences reinforce the importance of partnership and humility—working together to strengthen local capacity and ensure impact that lasts beyond our presence.

As we look ahead, sustainability will remain a central focus of ImpactHope's work. The coming year brings new opportunities to deepen partnerships, invest in long-term development, and invite others to participate in meaningful service. This Annual Impact Report tells a story of faithfulness—God's faithfulness, the faithfulness of our partners, and the faithfulness of supporters who continue to believe in this mission.

Thank you for being part of this journey. I look forward with great anticipation to what the coming year holds and to all that will be accomplished together.

With deep appreciation,

Brad Wilson

Impact Story

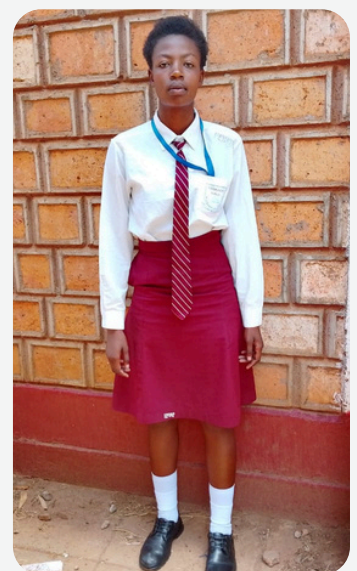

Penina's Journey—The Power of Educating One Girl

For Penina, completing secondary school was never a certainty. Growing up in a community where poverty and social pressure often lead girls toward early marriage, continuing her education felt like a distant dream. University was almost unimaginable—no one in her extended family had ever reached that milestone.

That changed when Penina received a secondary school scholarship through KEDHAP's education and female empowerment programs, supported by ImpactHope. With her school fees covered and consistent encouragement, Penina was able to stay in school, focus on her studies, and begin to believe that her future could be different.

In the 2025 Kenya Certificate of Secondary Education (KCSE) examinations, Penina achieved a grade that qualified her for direct university entry, becoming the first child in her extended family to reach this level of education. Her success represents more than a personal achievement—it marks a turning point for her family and a source of inspiration for her community.

Today, Penina's story is already encouraging younger girls to stay in school and dream beyond early marriage and the limitations of poverty. Her journey is a powerful reminder that when one girl is given the opportunity to learn, the impact can break cycles of poverty and open doors for generations to come.

Shelter Of Hope, Kenya

The year 2025 marked significant growth and resilience for Shelter of Hope (SOH) despite widespread drought and economic hardship in Homa Bay and Migori counties. Impact Story: Pauline's Journey

Pauline Anyango, 14, began her education at Shelter of Hope Academy with determination and a love for learning. In 2025, she sat her Grade 9 National Exams and emerged as the top student, scoring 63 out of 73 points.

Just one week before her results were released, Pauline's father—her family's sole provider—passed away. Grief and uncertainty left her unable to report to high school. When Shelter of Hope learned of her situation, they stepped in immediately, raising funds for tuition, travel, uniforms, and supplies.

Pauline is now enrolled at Moi Nyabohanse National Girls School, with SOH committed to supporting her through her education as she pursues her dream of becoming a nurse. Her mother's joy and gratitude reflect the lasting impact of timely, compassionate support.

Give Pads For Progress

<https://impacthope.ca/pads>

For many adolescent girls in rural Kenya, a lack of access to sanitary towels remains a hidden but powerful barrier to education. Each month, girls are forced to miss school, withdraw from class participation, or risk embarrassment simply because they do not have basic menstrual supplies.

In 2025 alone, 6,121 adolescent girls received menstrual health support, and 27,721 girls have been reached over the past five years.

KEDHAP teams visited partner schools to distribute sanitary towels and facilitate girls' health education sessions. School leaders report that these efforts are making a measurable difference—partner schools have seen reduced absenteeism, fewer dropouts, and fewer cases of teenage pregnancy. Consistent access to sanitary towels has helped girls remain in class, participate fully, and continue their education with dignity.

Impact Stories: Faith's Voice

Faith, a Grade 9 student from Songhor Comprehensive School, shared how deeply this support has changed her life:

"When I was on my monthly period and didn't have sanitary towels, I felt too shy to come to school. No one could buy pads for me, so I stayed home. This lowered my self-esteem and made it hard to participate in class.

Thanks to KEDHAP Foundation for improving our lives through sanitary towel provision. I can now attend all my lessons and continue with my education."

Clean Water & Agriculture, Kenya

Access to clean water has been a game-changer for the Maasai communities. In 2025, the Olkesumet borehole continued to be a vital lifeline for the Maasai community in Kajiado. Since its rehabilitation, the borehole has maintained a strong and consistent flow of clean water. New underground aquifers have opened, increasing water output and allowing the community to expand how the water is used for people, livestock, and agriculture.

Growing Reach and Daily Use

The borehole now serves a growing number of households, with community members collecting water daily using motorbikes and donkeys. Due to prolonged drought conditions in the region, the number of animals relying on this water source has increased significantly, including both cows and goats. To support this growth, a large water trough was purchased to ensure safe and reliable access for livestock.

This year also marked an important step toward long-term sustainability: a pipeline was extended to a nearby homestead, moving the project closer to its original objective of home-to-home water supply.

Agriculture and Food Security

Access to reliable water has transformed surrounding land into productive farmland. In 2025, the community continued to cultivate vegetables and crops that contribute to both nutrition and income:

- Spinach & kale: Produced year-round, yielding approximately 35-50 kg every two days on a rotating basis
- Beans & maize: Currently growing
- Bananas: Entering early harvest stage
- Yam: Planted and nearing harvest

L: Water now flows directly to this homestead through a newly extended pipeline—making it possible for the family to establish a small but thriving garden for food and income

R: The demonstration farm remains productive and well maintained, showing how access to clean water continues to support sustainable agriculture in Olkesumet.

These crops are improving household food security while also creating small income-generating opportunities, especially for women. Our next focus is on supplying clean water to Pokot, Western Kenya.

Soil & Soul Revival, Madagascar

In 2025, ImpactHope in collaboration with Foundations for Farming (FfF) strengthened food security and livelihoods in Madagascar through sustainable, climate-smart agriculture. Working with local partners, farmers were trained in the Pfumvudza (Foundations for Farming) method—an approach proven to increase yields, reduce costs, and restore the land.

Highlights

- 1,656 people trained in sustainable agriculture
 - 22% increase compared to 2024
 - Training reached 11 of Madagascar's 24 regions, including 10 new regions
- 184 farming plots established
 - Average size: 1,200 square meters
 - Developed through a special training program for retired participants (June 2025)
- Increased crop yields:
 - Rice: 6 tons per hectare (up from 5.2 tons in 2024)
 - Maize: 4.93 tons per hectare (up from 4.76 tons in 2024)
- Farmers received rice seeds to support the 2025/2026 farming season

Ankohonana Miarina: Building Self-Sufficient Communities

The Ankohonana Miarina project supports vulnerable households by providing housing, agricultural land, and skills training.

- 5 new households joined in 2025
- 12 households are now benefiting in total

Impact Story: From Barren Land to Thriving Fields

"Before adopting the Pfumvudza method, my yields were low and farming discouraged me. Since applying this technique, the work is well organized, enjoyable, and less physically demanding. What I appreciate most is the beauty of the farm—clean, orderly, and pleasant to be in."

Florine's experience reflects how improved farming practices can restore dignity, motivation, and pride in agricultural work.

"I am a beneficiary of the Ankohonana Miarina project, and my life has completely changed. Before, I struggled to produce cereals. Now, my yields have increased, and I can grow enough vegetables to feed my family and sell at the local market." – Jean Felix Raokotandratsara (Photo 2)

Jean Felix also shared how the encouragement, community support, and daily prayers organized by trainers helped bring harmony to his family life.

Community Development, Malawi

Christian Faith Community Church in Malawi (CFCC)

In Malawi, ImpactHope partners with the Christian Faith Community Church (CFCC), led by Pastor Moses, to support some of the country's most vulnerable communities through holistic, locally led initiatives. These programs respond to persistent challenges such as poverty, food insecurity, cholera outbreaks, early marriage, and limited access to education and healthcare.

The Numbers Speak Volumes!

Area of Ministry	People	Participation/Impact
Livestock (Goat Pass-On)	82 households (women-led)	Women received goats for milk, meat, manure, and income, reducing household poverty and improving nutrition.
Food Security	400 households	Women engaged in group-based farming, reducing hunger shocks and strengthening household food supply.
Education	42 youth	30 girls rescued from early marriage and 12 boys returned to school or enrolled in technical training.
Home-Based Care	376 children	Highly Vulnerable Children received protection, care, and support through trained church volunteers.

Magret is one of the beneficiaries of the Goat Pass-On Program, which helps vulnerable families improve nutrition and build sustainable livelihoods.

Children at the Christian Faith Community Nursery School receive early learning and care. Ongoing support is needed to provide at least one nutritious meal each day.

Impact Story: Clean Water in Times of Crisis

In 2025, ImpactHope distributed 63,360 water purification packages to communities in Malawi, providing access to over 630,000 litres of safe drinking water. These supplies arrived at a critical time, as severe flooding displaced thousands of families and increased the risk of cholera and other waterborne diseases.

Working alongside local partners and authorities, the packages were distributed in emergency camps and vulnerable communities, helping protect families from preventable illness. Access to clean water restores dignity, stability, and hope during times of crisis.

Jojina Phiri shares her testimony with courage, encouraging others in her community to seek medical care and faithfully follow HIV treatment.

The Grace Project Training Center

In 2025, The Grace Project Training Center continued equipping pastors and church leaders through its Distance Learning program.

By the Numbers

- 7 students enrolled in one Distance Learning cohort, running through mid-2026
- April 2025 graduation ceremony – 28 students graduated
- A reduction in funding has created significant challenges; however, we are refocusing our efforts to address the growing needs in rural communities.
- The interest and opportunity remain strong as we seek to meet the biblical training needs of pastors serving in underserved areas.

Impact Story: A Renewed Passion To Serve

Julius Chisanga enrolled in The Grace Training Project with a deep desire to preach and teach the Gospel—but without the confidence or training to know where to begin. Through the program, his understanding and confidence have steadily grown. Courses opened his eyes to how Scripture should be studied and applied, transforming the way he approaches ministry. Today, Julius shares that the program has not only strengthened his knowledge but also shaped his character and leadership.

Haiti (Medical Missions)

Over the past year, ImpactHope's partnership with Fabienne Goutier and Organizasyon Sante Peyi Pam (OSPP) helped restore access to critical healthcare in Haiti at a time of extreme instability and fear. Services provided included general medicine, pediatrics, OB/GYN care, dental services, and one end-of-life care case.

As a direct result of these clinics, five patients were referred for emergency surgery, all of which were successfully completed. For many patients, this was the first medical care they had received since 2019, following years of disruption due to COVID-19 and the widespread control of armed gangs. The clinics were hosted in a church-based safe space, allowing displaced families to receive care, openly share their symptoms, and find dignity and reassurance during a time of trauma and uncertainty.

Haiti (Education)

Vision of Grace Elementary School and Community Project

Over the past year, ImpactHope's partnership with the school in Haiti has helped provide consistent education, nourishment, and spiritual formation for children living amid ongoing economic and social instability.

By the end of the school year (October-December 2025), enrollment grew to 135 children, with staffing expanded to 8 certified teachers, along with administrative and support staff.

Despite national challenges, enrollment increased, teaching quality was strengthened through full government certification of all teachers, and classrooms and playground areas were maintained and improved. Most importantly, the school nutrition program continued uninterrupted, ensuring that every student received balanced meals each school day.

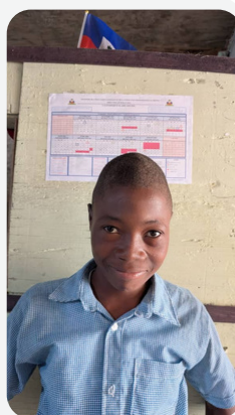

Key Statistics & Measurable Impact

- 135 children currently enrolled, with approximately 97 continuing from the previous year
- More than 30% of students showed academic improvement in core subjects such as Language and Mathematics
- Preschool 1 through Grade 6 fully operational
- Sports program were launched to support holistic child development

Though older than his classmates, Davidson is thriving thanks to patient teachers and a community that believes education can begin at any age. His journey is a powerful reminder that opportunity can change a life—no matter when it begins.

Nutrition

135 students | 11 teachers & staff

Students receive warm, nutritious meals every school day. For many children, this is the most reliable—and sometimes the only—complete meal they receive, directly supporting focus, attendance, and learning outcomes.

Impact Stories: A Fresh Start For Luz

When 6-year-old Luz María arrived at Hogar Génesis this year, she carried a story far heavier than her small frame. Coming from an unsafe and violent environment, she had never experienced consistent meals, schooling, or a place where she could simply be a child.

But everything changed the moment she walked through the doors of Hogar Génesis.

Today, Luz María is thriving. Thanks to this loving home — and the generosity of supporters like you.

She's in her final year of kindergarten, learning her favourite subject — math — and dreaming big dreams of becoming a doctor someday. She spends her afternoons drawing, playing outside, and laughing with the other girls... things she never had the chance to enjoy before.

Impact Story: Evan Israel's Story - Care When It Matters Most

in December, in the small village of Ilom in Chajul, Quiché, a newborn baby boy was found abandoned in a field. His parents are still unknown. Neighbors nearby discovered him and rushed him to the local health center in Ilom, doing everything they could to protect his fragile life.

Today, baby Evan Israel is under the custody of Guatemala's child protection services (PGN) and receiving care at the National Hospital in Nebaj. When doctors noticed that Evan had a small but concerning infection in his eyes, they reached out for help.

Because of generous donor support, medication was quickly provided. That simple act—timely medicine, given with compassion—helped protect Evan's health during an incredibly vulnerable moment in his life. Evan's story is a reminder that, in Nebaj, the hospital is often the last and safest place for those with nowhere else to turn.

Food Security & Community in Cuba

The year 2025 was one of the most difficult Cuba has faced in recent history. In the midst of these challenges, ImpactHope's partners in Palma Soriano and Camagüey continued to serve faithfully. All families served were active members of local churches, strengthening both community resilience and church ministry.

Casa Ben: Bringing Hope to Cozumel

<https://impacthope.ca/casaben>

In 2025, Casa Ben continued to grow as a place of compassion, community, and practical care for vulnerable people in Mexico. In Cozumel, the ministry remained a consistent presence, providing hot meals, encouragement, and a sense of belonging to individuals and families facing homelessness, illness, and loss. Volunteers carried the vision forward with dedication, ensuring that food outreach and relational support continued even during seasons when the founders were away. A significant milestone this year was the launch of Casa Ben Victoria, a new chapter serving impoverished communities and families at the pediatric cancer hospital in Victoria, Mexico. Led by longtime Casa Ben volunteer Julia, this outreach provided nourishing meals to grateful patients and caregivers, offering comfort during deeply challenging moments.

Tat's Place, Puerto Maldonado

<https://impacthope.ca/tatsplace>

Tat's Place in Peru continues to be a space where lives are gently restored through community, discipleship, and the steady presence of God's love. What began as a simple vision has grown into a vibrant ministry hub through a partnership with a local church, where Denis and Janaira now lead day-to-day ministry with deep compassion and faith. Together, Tat's Place has become a welcoming home for men, women, and families seeking connection, teaching, and hope.

This season of growth is made possible through the faithful partnership of local leaders and the continued heart and dedication of Tracy Blackburn, whose love for this ministry and community continues to shape its story.

"Hello, my name is Leeza, and I am 6 years old. I am in Grade 1, and I live with my parents and my brother. I like going to school because I love learning new things, especially writing. My teachers help me a lot, and I am getting better every day. Because of my sponsor, I can go to school, learn, and have the supplies I need. I am very thankful for your support. When I grow up, I want to be a teacher so I can help other children learn just like my teachers help me. Thank you for helping me and my family."

Now you can support children like Leeza and help them achieve their dreams!
